1. Introduction – Description of the deliverable task

The d@rts project website was launched on 26th February 2024.

The link to the website is: dialoguingarts.eu

The website currently showcases the project visual identity and basic information about d@rts. As we are only in the second month since the start of the project, the content already available on the website is quite general. The idea is that the content will develop together with the growth and progress of the activities.

Currently, the website contains the most important information about the project, its structure division in 10 work packages and information about its target audience and its research goals.

It also includes some initial details about the partner institutions (consortium and associated partners) as well as the staff members involved in the project. To showcase the geographical reach and diversity of the partners, a map functionality will be added in the future.

Moreover, the website also contains an “Events” page that will group all occurrences where the project will be disseminated and when the partners will meet.

The site contains a “News” section which will be used to communicate about any updates or relevant developments together with a “resources” section which will ultimately showcase the relevant public project deliverables, publications and multimedia products.

Finally, new pages will be added to ultimately contain information about the scientific advisory board and the associated projects.

A contact page will also be provided. A media room will be made available including the project’s visual identity, official logos and graphic guidelines.
